Dear Livie:

I can now report to you on developments in the case of [redacted] about whom you wrote me on 19 November. On 3 December, she talked to my assistant, [redacted] in my stead, and at that time she was given our personnel forms.

Every possibility for using [redacted] services within this Agency has been reviewed, but without favorable result. As you know we are now operating under a restrictive personnel ceiling, and there are no vacancies for which she could be selected. She is being notified to this effect by separate advice from our personnel people.

Despite our inability to take advantage of [redacted] interest in the Central Intelligence Agency, I do want you to know that we appreciate your bringing her to our attention.

With kindest regards,

Sincerely,
